Local Scene: MetLife Resources Visits Children at Bronx-Lebanon Hospital

Steve Israel and Lisa Dudelson of MetLife Resources pose with Snoopy and the nursing staff from Bronx-Lebanon Hospital.

Representatives from MetLife Resources (MLR) spread some holiday cheer in December when they visited the Bronx-Lebanon Hospital's Annual Children's Holiday Event in New York. It was an amazing turnout for the children, who received gifts of Snoopy dolls, coloring books and crayons, as well as the biggest gift of all: a visit from Snoopy, who stopped by each and every room in the children's ward.

"The huge highlight of the visit was the look on all the children's faces when they met Snoopy for the first time," said Raymond Reeves, account executive from MLR, who also helped coordinate the event with Cynthia Walter-Glickman, event planner for Bronx-Lebanon Hospital. "Seeing Snoopy really made their holidays at the hospital memorable."

This is the first time MetLife has been part of the hospital's annual event. In addition to thrilling the youngsters, the visit further strengthened the relationship between MLR and Bronx-Lebanon, an MLR client for more than 11 years.
